Join Hands in Sharing Hope

There is a story behind every face. Over 25% of the student population comes from humble backgrounds, with monthly per capita household incomes of S$950 and less. To supplement their finances, many turn to part-time jobs for the extra income. At NAFA, we truly understand and care for our students. Please give us your support in sustaining their passion in the creative fields!

“ I am thankful to NAFA for helping me out in times of trouble. No amount of words can express my gratitude towards the foundations that offered me the scholarship and bursary. I will continue to strive hard and put in my best. ”

Tan Chay Bing Scholarship and Tan Ean Kiam Arts Bursary*

Since young, I watched my parents work really hard to provide a comfortable living for the family. Coming from a humble family, I value the importance of hard work.

Having an innate passion for the theatre, I aspire to be an actor. I spoke with my father about realising my dreams and pursuing a Diploma in Theatre. With his strong words of encouragement, I enrolled into NAFA.

Things unexpectedly took a bad turn in my second year of studies. My father had a sudden haemorrhage and fell into a coma. After two brain operations to stop the internal bleeding, the doctor told us to be prepared for the worst.

My father was the sole breadwinner of the family. With medical bills piling up, three schooling children and an elderly grandma to take care of, my family started to face surmounting financial difficulties. I was so worried that I will not able to afford my NAFA school fees.

I turned to my lecturers and school staff for support. The NAFA Relief Fund kicked in and my school fees were partially subsidised.

I am thankful to also receive the Tan Chay Bing Scholarship for the past two years and the Tan Ean Kiam Arts Bursary during my second year. These lightened my family's financial burden substantially.

Today my dad is doing well and on the road to recovery.
