

ART TEACHING FOR SPECIAL NEEDS - WATERCOLOR PAINTING (4 SESSIONS X 3 HOURS)

This course aims to introduce learners to use watercolour painting for work with people with special needs. This course is suitable for teachers and caregivers who are interested in facilitating learning through the arts. Learners will be taught various approaches and techniques to enable those under their care to express themselves through pictorial composition using mark-making tools. Learners will acquire scaffolding techniques of layer colours, dry brush and lines, hatching and cross-hatching. This enables learners' clients to enhance memory and motor skills by looking closely at the world around them while fostering mindfulness and positivity through mixing of water and colours.

Certification:

Learners will be presented with a digital Certificate of Participation upon attaining a minimal 75% attendance rate.

Trainer's Profile

Ranae Lee-Nasir

Ranae Lee-Nasir is a local Visual Artist, Arts Educator and Assistant Researcher with over 15 years of experience in conducting visual arts lessons in drawing, painting, printmaking and mix-materials exploration for children and youth, including persons with special needs. She has led several community-based Visual Arts projects.

Ranae holds a Bachelor's Degree in Fine Arts (Printmaking) from LASALLE College of the Arts and a Master of Education (Special Education) degree conferred by the National Institute of Education (NIE). Upon receiving her WSQ Advanced Certificate in Training and Assessment (Ver5) certification, she conducted Visual Arts teachers-training workshops for teachers who enjoy using the craft as a regular activity in their classrooms.

Ranae has a passion for empowering individuals through artmaking. In 2015, she collaborated with the Ministry of Education and National Arts Council to develop the Visual Arts Toolkit for Special Education (SPED) Schools. In 2016, she began conducting workshops on art creation for teachers and caregivers of persons with special needs and continues to do so today.
